"... I don't have many guns that have drift adjustable sights. The wife has a couple of Glocks and my grandson has a Savage Rascal with a drift adjustable front sight so that was the guinea pig. Let me tell you this tool of Steve's worked like a champ! It's one of those why didn't I think of that tools. It's very simple to use, you can adjust the amount of force needed by simply pulling harder or softer, it gives a solid "whack" or the slightest tap depending on the need and finally it is one well made rugged tool. ..."
